

ENGLAND – NORTHUMBERLAND

8-day / 7-night one-hotel GUIDED walking, based at Alnmouth – with a choice of walks each day

A guided walking holiday based at the heart of the historic village of Alnmouth on the North Sea coast with a sweeping sandy beach and a small tidal harbour. The area is fascinating to explore, with its combination of historic castles, the coast, hills, valleys, country lanes and even Hadrian's Wall within an hour's drive.

Highlights include the remote wild beauty of the Cheviot Hills, walks along the unspoilt coast to Craster and dramatic Bamburgh Castle, nearby Alnwick Castle (Harry Potter's Hogwarts) and its famous gardens, and two great sightseeing locations and wildlife havens: Holy Island and the Farne Islands.

Suggested itinerary (routes are determined each day by walk leaders – subject to change):

Day 1: Arrival day

Plan to arrive at your country house accommodation mid-afternoon. Ask about local transport or taxi transfer options from Alnmouth railway station.

Day 2: The Northumberland Coast

Enjoy a pleasant walk along the beach and atop low cliffs from the atmospheric fishing village of Craster, with its famous kipper smokehouse, to Alnmouth. Or walk via Embleton to the iconic clifftop ruins of Dunstanburgh Castle, then along the coast to Alnmouth. With luck we may see seals and a wide array of seabirds.

Day 3: The Ingram Valley

Discover Iron Age hillforts in the Breamish Valley, Wether Hill and Brough Law. We may spot lapwings and curlews on the hillside and Cheviot sheep grazing in the pastures. Or, on the harder walk, we have more distant views of the River Breamish and pre-historic forts as we ascend to Old Fawdon Hill trig point, which offers 360° views, including the eastern boundary of Northumberland National Park.

Day 4: Free day

No walks are organised on this day. You can relax at the hotel or explore independently. Alnwick Castle and garden are well worth a visit, or perhaps take a boat trip to the Farne Islands, one of the best places in Britain to view grey seals, puffins and other seabirds. Or Edinburgh is just an hour away by train.

Day 5: Amble and Warkworth

We walk along the Northumberland Coastal Path from various starting points. Some walks take in Amble, where the harbour's boardwalk has views across to Coquet Island, and all walkers pass by Warkworth Castle. This ruined hilltop fortress was built sometime in the 12th century and has a fascinating history; it was once home to 'Harry Hotspur' and served as a setting for scenes in Shakespeare's Henry IV Part I and Part II. Return via coastal footpath and beach to Alnmouth.

Day 6: Rothbury and the Simonside Hills

Fine views of the Cheviot and Simonside Hills from either the slopes above Lord Armstrong's Cragside Estate or from Garleigh Moor and the summit of Dove Crag. The ancient cup-and-ring stones on Garleigh Moor are an example of late Neolithic / early Bronze Age rock art, some 3000 to 5000 years old. We walk via the estate's carriage drive to the peaceful town of Rothbury on the River Coquet.

Day 7: Northumberland's early history

We explore the Bamburgh coast. On the coastal path we pass by the busy port of Seahouses with views of the Farne Islands – with luck we spot a variety of seabirds and perhaps grey seals bobbing in the waves. The final stretch is along the beach with Bamburgh Castle in our sights. This medieval castle atop a craggy cliff was the seat of the early Northumbrian kings. The site is believed to have been occupied for over 10,000 years, beginning as a Celtic-Brittonic wooden palisade fort, then passing into possession of the Anglo-Saxons. It was sacked by Vikings in 993 and subsequently Norman lords built a keep on the site in the 11th century, which forms the central part of the present-day castle.

Day 8: Departure day

Tour ends after breakfast.
