We start in Paris, the city of light and capital of France, where our meeting point is near Notre Dame Cathedral. We follow the Seine downstream passing the Louvre and Eiffel Tower to Conflans. From here we cruise the valley of the River Oise to Compiègne. In the Middle Ages this part of France was the centre of power in France and we will see many chateaux and palaces of the French kings and lords.

We follow the wonderful old St. Quentin canal to the historical city of St. Quentin, where the gothic basilica and the town hall are worth a visit. We cruise through the tunnel of Riqueval and cross the border into Belgium where we visit Doornik, once an important stopping place for pilgrims, and Oudenaarde which has a beautiful town hall. We also visit Ghent, with its many ancient streets and buildings. Here too you can admire the beautiful triptych by the famous Dutch painter Jan van Eyck.

The city of Bruges is possibly the most beautiful of the historical Flemish cities, famous for its many museums and hand-made Bruges lace.

Suggested itinerary – cycling & cruise times can vary:

Day 1 (Saturday): Paris

Meet at Port d'Arsehal in central Paris (next to the Place de la Bastille) at 4.00pm for a welcome drink and to meet fellow passengers and crew. Adjust your bikes and dinner is at 6.30pm followed by a guided city walk - Montmartre and the Sacré-Coeur.

Day 2 (Sunday): Paris – Conflans Cruising / cycling time: 6.5 hours

We start the day cruising or cycling through the centre of Paris, past the Louvre, Musée d'Orsay and Eiffel tower. We follow the Seine through industrial suburbs Gennevilliers, Bologne-Billancourt and Ile Sequin, home of the Renault car factories. Finally we arrive at Conflans-Sainte-Honorine, where the River Oise and the Seine merge. Since the 19th century Conflans was an important centre for shipping and river traffic in Northern France – see its history at the museum Municipal de la Batellerie. Dinner is at 6.30pm

Day 3 (Monday): Conflans – Creil - Cruising / cycling time: 7.5 hours

Breakfast at 8.00am and we begin our cycling from Conflans following the River Oise to Auvers-sur Oise, where Vincent van Gogh painted and spent the last days of his life (this is an area that many impressionist painters visited). We pass the abbey of Royaumont and Chantilly with its famous chateau and racecourse. Our destination is Creil, a country town, which in the 19th century was famous for its fine pottery – much of which can be seen in the museum Gallée Juillet.

Day 4 (Tuesday): Creil – Compiègne - Cruising / cycling time: 5 hours

After breakfast we cycle to Pont-St-Maxence where there was a bridge over the Oise. Pont-St-Maxence became the place to stay for kings and merchants on their way to Flanders. We pass the beautiful abbey of Moncel founded in 1309 by King Philips de Schone. We stay the night in the beautiful town of Compiègne, which owes its architectural wealth to its proximity to Paris and the enormous woods where a succession of the French kings and courtiers loved to hunt. The Chateau de Compiègne with its magnificent gardens are spectacular, as is the town hall (built 1498 – 1530), the national horse stud farm and the Tour Jeanne d'Arc.

Day 5 (Wednesday): Compiègne – Noyon - Cruising / cycling time: 6 hours

Leaving the River Oise we continue along the canal system connecting France and Belgium. We spend the night in Noyon, a town where the coronation of King Charlemagne took place. Later Noyon became an important Episcopal town and the cathedral (dating from the 12th century) is well worth visiting.

Day 6 (Thursday): Noyon – St Quentin - Cruising / cycling time: 8 hours

We cruise on the St.-Quentin Canal past Chauny and Tergnier. Our destination today is St. Quentin a city founded in the 2nd century on a junction of two important Roman roads. This lively provincial capital of the Aisne flourished as a destination for Christian pilgrims to the grave of St.-Quentin. The gothic basilica here was built between 1230 and the 15th century and has a unique double transept and windows from the 13th and 14th century. The city hall dates back to 1500 and is in the flamboyant French gothic style.

Day 7 (Friday): St. Quentin

Today is a free day in St.-Quentin. You can explore the city further or go shopping or visit Laon, once the capital of the French empire with a 12th century cathedral. You can also take a train to Amiens or Ypres to visit the WW1 memorial sites and battlefields – ask about our full day optional guided tour of the Somme – including Villers Bretonneaux - with an expert military historian.

Day 8 (Saturday): St.Quentin – Cambrai - Cruising / cycling time: 7 hours

The Canal de St.-Quentin was commissioned in Napoleon's time to carry coal. The canal passes through many of these, the longest being the tunnel of Riqueval at 5670 metres long. Today, as in former years, ships are still pulled through the tunnel by an electric towboat (it takes about 2-hours). High above the tunnel is the watershed of the Escaut (Schelde) and Somme Rivers. Cambrai was once a Roman provincial capital and an important destination for pilgrims. Worth seeing are the impressive restored buildings of the city fortress, built under Charles V and the old city gate which dates from the late 12th century.

Day 9 (Sunday): Cambrai – Pont Malin - Cruising / cycling time: 6 hours

We continue along the banks of the canal de St. Quentin and in the afternoon we join the Canal du Grand Gabarit to Pont Malin, where we spend the night.

Day 10 (Monday): Pont Malin – Doornik - Cruising / cycling time: 8 hours

Following the canal du Grand Gabarit at Montagne we cross the French border and at Bleharies we cross into Belgium. We sail through the so-called 'white land' to the charming fortress town of Antoin. Our destination is Doornik (in French: Tournai), one of the oldest cities of Belgium. Here we are in the region known as Wallonia, where towns and villages have both a French and a Flemish name.

Since the beginning of the 17th century Doornik was ruled by the French. Tapestry weaving gained in importance here, while the cloth weaving industry declined and in the various museums excellent examples of both industries can be seen. In 1940 the entire city centre was destroyed after a German air raid, however, the town has been extensively rebuilt including the cathedral of Notre Dame (12th and 13th century) and the Belfort which was built at about 1200.

Day 11 (Tuesday): Doornik (Tournai) – Oudenaarde - Cruising / cycling time: 5.5 hours

We cruise downstream on the River Schelde, crossing the language barrier into the Flemish region. From here onwards Flemish is the spoken language. Our destination today is Oudenaarde a place that because of its border location was involved in many wars. Oudenaarde has always had someone on lookout and we can see the statue of the most famous watchman, Hanske de Krijger on the city hall. Built in the first half of the 16th century this city hall was built of sandstone in a Brabantine late Gothic style and it is one of the most beautiful in Flanders. Oudenaarde is also known as the town of the tapestry weavers

Day 12 (Wednesday): Oudenaarde – Ghent - Cruising / cycling time: 7 hours

We continue on the Schelde towards Ghent, a lively university town with a rich history. The town, founded by the Romans, is at the place where the rivers Leie and Schelde merged. This favourable location brought on quite some wealth peaking in the late 13th and early 14th century when the cloth weaving industry was a source of great riches. In the city itself many patrician residences have been preserved. Visits should include the Lakenhalle (1425) where the cloth traders gathered and St. Baafs cathedral where you can see several masterpieces of mediaeval art including "The worship of the Lamb of God" by Jan van Eyck.

Day 13 (Thursday): Ghent – Bruges - Cruising / cycling time: 6 hours

Continuing through the pleasant countryside of Western Flanders we arrive at our final destination, a city also called the Venice of the North. Bruges is perhaps the most beautiful of all Flemish cities. Its old city centre dates from the Middle Ages and is almost completely intact.

Day 14 (Friday): Bruges

Breakfast and a free day to explore the city. Dinner is served onboard at 6.30pm

Day 15 (Saturday): Tour ends after breakfast
