

SPIRIT WALKER* - CENTRE-BASED WALKING & ACTIVITY HOLIDAYS

8 days / 7 nights walking, rafting and Native American spiritual and wilderness experience

Traditional native or First Nation North American culture and the rich history in the Canadian Rocky Mountains are inseparable in the wonderful natural wilderness of this region of Canada. This unique program has been created to give you a multi-activity adventure that will include hiking, exploring and river rafting intertwined with the opportunity to experience the wilderness through native eyes.

Cross River Wilderness Center is remote and in the heart of the Canadian Rockies between Kootenay and Banff National Parks. The Kootenay / Yoho National Parks were highlighted in the "National Geographic Traveler" magazine and ranked second in the world as "Best Rated Places" to visit for destination stewardship categories such as in authenticity, cultural quality, pollution and tourism management: "good, marked trail system and outstanding visitor management. An awe-inspiring destination in summer."

Mostly based in comfortable cabin accommodation there are two-days of wilderness hiking to experience first hand the majesty of the forests, sub-alpine meadows, ridgelines and marshes of the traditional wilderness.

To help with the traditional interpretation of the spiritual connection with this wilderness two days are spent in inter-cultural sharing experiences with a North American First Nations elder. These experiences could include nature or medicine walks; nature awareness or traditional teachings; traditional earth and wilderness skills; and traditional campfire gatherings with camaraderie, stories, and music. The early ancestors of the Kootenay River valley and surrounding areas also become our spiritual guides this week as you explore the very essence of the Canadian Rocky Mountains and beyond.

Suggested itinerary:

Day 1: Arrive at Cross River Wilderness Centre by 5:00pm. After preliminary introductions with staff, facilitators, and First Nations elder, a hot evening meal is served in the lodge. After dinner, we will formally gather with the rest of the group to outline the backpacking trip and the week's experiences ahead.

Day 2: After an early breakfast, we pack for our two-night backpacking base camp adventure, and finish our final preparations before heading out to the trailhead (approximately a 45-minute drive). Here we will have an on-location safety talk, and begin the hike with a slow pace, up to a high sub-alpine mountain pass and ridge line. We follow a river through dense forest, avalanche slopes, and sub-alpine marsh and meadow ecosystems. Once up to the pass, we will set up our base camp adjacent to a nearby river or lake. The pass itself is a very historic pass in the Rocky Mountains, and will present great opportunities for some good storytelling. Walking distance: 5-6 km - elevation gain: 600m.

Day 3: Today presents us with one of the benefits of base camping—out-trip choices. After breakfast, we will pack up some small daypacks and head out to probably one of two places. Depending on group circumstances, we can either continue along the ridgeline, to another sub-alpine lake, which will also allow us to reach above tree line, with moderate physical or mental exertion; or we can challenge ourselves with a somewhat steep climb up a scree slope, well above tree line, to a high alpine mountain shoulder overlooking the entire region. There is no wrong choice; both offer great views and experiences, as well as possible opportunities for wildlife viewing and nature-based activities. Lunch will be taken on the trail and we aim to be back at base camp by around 4:30pm. Walking distance: 3-5 km - elevation gain: 200-500m.

Day 4: After breakfast and our pack-up, we enjoy a morning stroll and exploration around the surrounding alpine ridges. We will aim to return to the trailhead by 3:00 p.m. at the very latest so that we have time to wash-up before a delicious, home-cooked, dinner back at Cross River. The evening is yours to relax at the Wilderness Centre, whether alone with a book, around the campfire, or in the outdoor wood-fired hot tub.

Day 5: After breakfast, we spend a day on a river-rafting trip on the Kootenay River. Depending on time of year, the waters may range from Class 2 to 3+, with some short sections of low Class 4 rapids in June. The surrounding cliffs, characteristic waterfalls, and good stories along the way make this trip a fun and unique way to enjoy the mountains. We aim to be back at Cross River by 5:00pm, just in time to wash up before dinner.

Day 6-7: On these two days we spend our time around the Wilderness Centre, or the surrounding landscape, participating in various inter-cultural sharing experiences with a North American First Nations elder. Possible experiences could include: various nature or medicine walks; nature awareness or inter-cultural sharing activities based on traditional teachings; traditional earth and wilderness skills; and traditional campfire gatherings with camaraderie, stories, and music.

All experiences will introduce you to an important nature and community-based way of life. The days evolve out of the relationships that occur in a traditional way, so there is no set schedule, and the experiences themselves end up being different for each person. We cannot say how it will all turn out; it always turns out exactly the way it is supposed to, for everyone to powerfully get out of it exactly what they are meant to.

Day 8: After one final breakfast together, we part ways until next time.
