August / September 2008

"In bullfighting there is a term called querencia. The querencia is the spot in the ring to which the bull returns. Each bull has a different querencia, but as the bullfight continues, and the animal becomes more threatened, it returns more and more often to his spot. As he returns to his querencia, he becomes more predictable. And so, in the end, the matador is able to kill the bull because instead of trying something new, the bull returns to what is familiar. His comfort zone." Carly Fiorina

EUROPEAN TRAVEL NEWS

A look at what's influencing travel plans

Did you know the Italian Government Tourist Office is proud to announce that according to the provisional data released by the Italian Bureau of Statistics, 659,862 Australians visited Italy in 2007 with a total of 1,712,145 overnight stays!

Getaway to Tuscany

The popular TV travel program Getaway sent a film crew to our Tuscan farmhouse apartments recently. They have scheduled a story on the family holiday opportunities at Castellare Di Tonda (near San Gimignano & Siena) to go to air on 28th August 2008. This wonderful hillside estate is ideal for families or as a base to explore - for details of each of our twelve Tuscan farmhouses apartments click-on to: Castellare De Tonda in Italy on our website <http://www.outdoortravel.com.au>

See the ancient Metropoli of Lithium in Rome

This exhibition from 16 October - 6 January 2009 – see <http://www.palazzoesposizioni.it> - recounts and describes the Etruscan civilisation in Lazio including Veio, Cerveteri, Vulci and Tarquinia. How could you miss it!

More than the Camino

UNESCO declares 17 new caves in Asturias, Cantabria and Basque country as an extension of existing World Heritage Sites of the famed Altamira caves. The caves all located in Cantabria, Asturias and the Basque Country, were described as "the peak of Palaeolithic cave art". Cantabria's Altamira Cave, made the UNESCO list in 1985 and contains well-preserved examples of Upper Palaeolithic cave paintings – see <http://www.unesco.org>

Vueling and ClickAir to merge

Spanish budget airline Vueling and Clickair have finalised talks to merge. Vueling will absorb Clickair, which is 80% owned by flag carrier Iberia, through a capital increase and remain based in Barcelona. The new airline will have 50 aircraft and 10.7 million passengers and as the third largest airline in Spain will be better equipped to take on the likes of Easyjet and Ryanair who have been building up significant business to and from Spain.

The merger, which is still subject to competition commission approval, will see Iberia emerge as a major shareholder. See <http://www.vueling.com/> or <http://www.clickair.com/> or for more details on a host of low-cost European airlines see http://www.outdoortravel.com.au/content/europe#low\_cost

Celebrate Joseph Hayden in 2009

Next year is "Hayden year" with many events in Germany paying tribute to one of the world's greatest composers to mark the 200th anniversary of his death. Joseph Hayden (1732 - 1809) was the most famous and most eminent composer of his time, a fatherly friend to Mozart and teacher to Beethoven. He produced over 1200 works the best known including the German national anthem and the "Creation" and "Seasons" oratorios.

Not just rain in Spain

The annual "Tomatina" is held on the last Wednesday in August in the town of Buñol in Spain. This unusual fiesta brings together crowds of people, ready to have a great time of laughter and fun, hurling tomatoes at anything that moves. It gets underway at 9am, in the town square, with rolls and pastries provided for breakfast by the Town council. Before the battle, a huge pole is erected. It is covered with soap and has a leg of ham on the end. The most daring try to climb as high as possible to get their hands on the prize. Meanwhile, buckets of water are launched from balconies, soaking everyone as they prepare for battle. At 11am a shot is fired to announce the start of the fight, and from the end of the street, the first truckload of "ammunition" appears. Those riding on the truck throw the first tomatoes, then the vehicle stops and unloads its cargo and the crowd rushes forward to stock up on "ammunition". Within a few seconds, everything turns red. Trucks loaded with tomatoes arrive one after another, until a second shot is fired signalling the end of the battle.

York Festival of Food and Drink in England

The UK's largest annual food festival takes place in from 19th – 28th September 2008 in the historic city of York. With a focus on local and regional food and drink, the theme of this year's festival is Better Food Less Waste. The ten-day programme features themed lunches and dinners, local and visiting markets, competitions and cookery workshops. Slow Food North Yorkshire will provide tutored tastings. Other highlights include cookbook lunches, ale trails, roving feasts, street cooking, meal deals and street foods offering a vast selection of produce to tantalise the tastebuds.

A unique aspect of the York Festival is its use of some of the city's remarkable and historic locations. With a well-documented history dating back to Roman times, York is a picturesque walled riverside city not to be missed. Entrance to the festival is free. Some dinners and tastings are ticketed events. See <http://www.yorkfoodfestival.com>

THE WALKING PARTY

Walking holiday news in France & England

A report from our guide James - our two new walks, the first in April into the Basque country in the foothills of the Pyrenees and the second into the heart of medieval Suffolk in July were fabulous. I think with Suffolk, Diana and I were almost more excited than anyone, as it was the novelty factor of being in England for the first time. Ninety percent of the group were English you see.

Dedham

Wyken Vineyard

Going down river for a picnic

The food was absolutely excellent. The chefs at the Great House, Lavenham, The Crown Inn, Bildeston and The Talbooth, Dedham excelled themselves. Chris Lee at The Crown made a pea and ham soup, which was as much a revelation to me as, was Heston Blumenthal's black olive and icing sugar paste, which he adds to a strawberry trifle. Chris had piled a small decorative tower of peas, ham, thyme and pastry in the middle of the bowl and finished it with a whirl of cream. This made us laugh, as we were sure we had ordered pea soup but we could not see where the soup was and wondered if the cream was the soup part. But in the giggles, jugs of beautiful velouté soup arrived which were then carefully poured into the bowls and ... hey presto! It was a wonderful moment of a chef's delight showing us just what he is up to. Do not hesitate to go to the Crown Inn at Bildeston if ever in Suffolk and of course for that matter do not forget the Great House at Lavenham either.

The service in Suffolk was first rate too. I think it is probably the best service out of all the countries we work in. They were all efficient, charming and helpful. It was pure professionalism at its best. Of course for me, having a chance to drink a classic English beer every lunch after a three-hour walk in beautiful scenery with willows aslant the brook and aspens dear rustling in the breeze was a sheer delight also. Do not forget that the walking is beautifully flat and therefore our gentlest walking by far.

We will be proposing two walks next year the first at the end of April for the bluebells and the second in the first week of July. We would be absolutely delighted to have another chance of to entertain in England so please do think of this! One tricky part about England is they are prickly about block bookings so we would appreciate you contact Outdoor Travel for early bookings for this to ensure room availability. Dates: 25th April – 2nd May and 26th June – 4th July.

And what else ... yes the very popular Quercy Perigord week is now on the 2009 agenda as Francis and Helen Passebon are back in action having sold the charming Moulin de Labique. This week is now called the Dordogne Quercy week as we move up to the Dordogne to fit in their beautiful Chateau Baudry, which boasts a fire in every bedroom! For all those who remember Helene's fabulous cooking this is a chance to sample her exquisite mixes of sugar and spice and everything nice again. It is also nice to be in the Dordogne for a few days and we can arrange any special visits to gardens or caves. A lot more wine to be consumed next year as we are in the heart of the wine country here.

We have space for two more couples on our tours in Umbria (6th - 13th September 2008) and the French Cooking week (4th - 11th October 2008) in the Lot Valley. The Walking Party's gentle rambles in Italy are moderate but far from strenuous. Pack animals carry the food, with lavish picnics and plenty of refreshments. Overnight stays are in small, charming hotel/restaurants, all with swimming pools and an emphasis on the very finest regional cuisine. Particular care is taken with choosing walking trails: routes are neither too steep nor too arduous, threading through regions of spectacular beauty not yet flooded with tourists

Outdoor Travel Walking Party dates for 2009 – these are unique small group tours - early bookings are essential:

FRANCE - TRUFFLE HOP: 7th - 11th 14th - 18th and 21st - 25th February 2009

SHERPA WALKING ON THE ISLAND OF MADEIRA

Bob, bob, bobbing along in Madeira by David Holmes

Robert, Robert and Robert were just 3 of the adventurous group of 8 who recently joined me on the walking trip to the spectacular mountains and tranquil levadas of Madeira. To complete this Sherpa itinerary sure footedness, a head for heights and a reasonable level of fitness is definitely the order of the day.

To test my walking companions we headed for the rugged and near vertical northern coast just a few kilometers from our first base of Machicco. Experimenting with a cross-country route out of the town proved interesting and a little steep but was rewarded by good views and a pleasant stroll down a quiet road to join our first levada. The levadas are a network of irrigation channels, with paths running alongside, that move water from the wetter north to the southern side of the island. Easy walking along the levada was followed by a moderate ascent to an airy coastal path that contours some 300m above the breaking Atlantic rollers. The coastline is indeed spectacular and the path has just one or two tricky sections before reaching the pretty coastal village of Port Da Cruz where one can stop for a long late lunch.

Day 3 dawned a little cloudy but we were whisked away to the town of Monte, perched above the capital Funchal. Admittedly the relaxed timetable for the day allowed us to rub shoulders with the non-walkers on the island, visit a tropical garden and even ride the famous wicker sleds down the hill before we returned to the serious business of walking on our levada trail to Camacha. It wasn't all level sailing as we cut across a steep sided valley and ascended to a higher levada. The day ended in sleepy Santo da Serra where you can pass the time in a local café watching the world go by, make use of the hotel pool and gardens or wander to the 27 hole championship golf course for a drink in the club house.

Day 4 is one perhaps best forgotten as the tried and tested levada walk that has served our clients for many years is being spoilt by ongoing engineering work. It was 'interesting' to see how large pipes are buried along the route of an old levada but the mud and disruption was not conducive to an enjoyable end to the day. I had to find time later in the week to investigate an alternative, and even if I say so myself, I have found a much better route for future clients.

From Santo da Serra we set out on day 5 for an altogether different levada experience. The Levada da Serra flows from high in the mountains, clinging to the steep sides of the valleys with some narrow paths and long vertiginous drops. We had proceeded carefully but all stood in utter disbelief as a very large group (40+) of ill-equipped and not so fit looking 'tourists' were lead in the opposite direction. (I was pleased to hear mumbles from the group that they were glad that they were on a Sherpa holiday.) Jurassic cloud forests, a few tunnels, more big drops and views to the coast far below before we arrived at Ribeiro Frio (Cold River) at an altitude of 950m. There is time whist waiting for our taxi pick up for a well-deserved drink after this exhilarating walk.

Day 6 is a cracking route and for many will prove the highlight of the week. It does however demand reasonable weather. Despite a far from ideal forecast I was relieved to wake to a clear sky over the mountains and low cloud hugging the coast, it was going to be a good day. The taxi to start the day took us high into the mountains leaving just an hour of ascent to reach the very top of the island at the summit of Pico Riuvo (1860m). It was windy but that is not surprising since we were standing at over 6000ft some 500 miles into the Atlantic! Being out of season meant that we had the 'decking' of the summit viewpoints to ourselves. This summit and the sweeping views are just the start of a fantastic route along the sharp mountain ridge in the centre of the island. This is the wild and most dramatic scenery of the tour and a route not to be missed. Recent path maintenance has made the walk easier to follow, quicker and safer with much of the route paved. Good steps and protection on the steepest slopes have also been constructed to remove any potentially dangerous places. Some weary legs and beaming faces made it to the café at the end of a long steep descent before walking down the road to our remote mountain hotel at Encumeada.

Sadly on Day 7 our last walk but it was by no means an anticlimax. Another day amongst the plunging mountain slopes with airy paths and birds eye views down into the valleys. With more than a little ascent and descent under our belts and the hotel becoming just a speck in the distance we started to descend (rather testing on the knees) to the village of Corticeiras from where somewhat reluctantly we took a bus ride to the busy streets of Funchal. The city seemed rather an alien world when compared to the remote mountains, quiet villages and peaceful Levadas of the preceding week. I pitied the thousands that stay in Funchal and only glimpse a mere fraction of the magnificent variety of landscapes that Madeira has to offer.

I have not mentioned the wonderful exotic flora, the comfortable hotels and friendly people, all of which contribute to the enjoyment of the holiday. The whole experience really did exceed my expectations and I believe those of the group. Mick a veteran of 18 previous Sherpa trips rated day 6 amongst the best day walks he had ever done and Rosemary who was on her first walking holiday was planning the next after just one day. This trip is indeed a fine collection of routes at a moderate grade with a good mix of mountain, coastal and levada walking that can be enjoyed by anyone as long as vertigo is not a problem and navigation skills are reasonable for the days in the high mountains.

EXTRA DEPARTURE: Madeira is a popular winter sun destination especially from October to April. It is not in the current brochure but self-guided walks are available through Outdoor Travel all year round. Dave travelled to Madeira during March.

If you want to join an escorted walking holiday to Madeira a NEW departure has been scheduled for 8th November 2008. This is a good tour for single travellers as the single supplement is reasonable. There are low cost flights to Funchal on Madeira with Easyjet from the UK.

Early bookings for 2009 are welcome & encouraged.

HORSE RIDING IN CHIANTI

Rendolo riding school in Italy – places still available in 2008

Explore the Tuscan countryside and heart of the Chianti at the rustic Rendolo Riding Centre, founded in 1970 by a delightful English lady, Jenny Bawtree, her son Nicholas & her Italian companion Pietro. The farmhouse and stables are on the eastern slopes of the Chianti Mountains. Before it lies the broad valley of the Arno and beyond, the long ridge of the Pratomagno, with its highest point of 1,591 meters. On the other side lies the Casentino Valley, rich in castles and Romanesque churches. Behind Rendola stretches the range of Chianti Mountains with their highest point of 890 meters.

This combination of riding and driving takes you into the hills of Chianti, the unspoiled area between Florence and Siena. The region is not only famous for its red wine but also for the beauty of its wooded hills, medieval castles, churches and abbeys, Renaissance villas and fortified villages. Riders with an appreciation for history will marvel at the landscape around them, knowing it was once enjoyed in centuries past by Dante and Boccaccio, Machiavelli and Leonardo da Vinci. During the ride, there are frequent opportunities to meet the friendly and hospitable Tuscan people, as well as sample the varied wonders of Tuscan cooking complimented with Chianti wine. The schedule also allows for a day of sightseeing in the historic town of Siena.

Places still available 13 – 20 September or 11 – 18 and 18 – 25 October 2008 at $2350 per person with accommodation most meals and guided horse riding.

WHAT YOU SAID ABOUT OUR HOLIDAYS

Sherpa walking in Meiringen, Switzerland – "We are back and had a wonderful time, thanks for organising us"
Sue

Bike & Barge in Belgium & Holland – "I have been meaning to do this for some time now, but have only just now got around to it. I wanted to say what a fantastic trip we had on the Bike Barge Tour earlier this year. It turned out to be a fantastic trip & well worth the money. The facilities were outstanding and way better than anything I had imagined. The professionalism of the Captain, Crew & Tour Guides was first class. Every evening meal was a culinary delight & always of a high standard that you would find only in the better restaurants around many cities of the world."

Thanks once again for firstly advertising the trip & secondly for the effort in organising the trip for us. I would readily recommend it to anyone (despite the snow on the first day of our ride). We have continued riding periodically since our return & this has been of great benefit to our general fitness level. Cheers Andy.

“Thanking you very much for arranging the Milford Trek for Mark and Des in April. They had a wonderful time and couldn’t believe how well organised the trek was. The weather was very kind to them and they left with wonderful memories.” Dallas

CARBON & THE HOLIDAY & WORK ENVIRONMENT

What we can do to make a difference?

With the release of reports into the global impact to the environment by carbon emissions & the use of cars, planes & of power generation there have been some creative new information sites that can give you some ideas about how you can look at a personal contribution to the issue of global warming.

PC Power Consumption, Does it Really Matter?

More than 30 billion kilowatt-hours of energy are wasted because many of us simply forget to shut down our computers when we're not using them. If we could just improve the efficiency of how we use our PCs, the savings in energy costs would be over $3 billion dollars! The CO2 emissions from just 15 computers are equivalent in energy terms to the gas consumption used by one car.

Our goal is to introduce 100,000,000 PC users into the Local Cooling community. If just 100 million of us optimise the efficiency of our computers' energy consumption, we could prevent over 300 billion kg of CO2 gas emissions, equivalent to over 1.8 billion gallons of oil, in just the first year alone. A Victorian based solution - <http://www.treesmart.com.au>

Each year, the average Australian vehicle emits about 4.3 tonnes of carbon dioxide - the major Greenhouse Gas. While various attempts are being made in the transport sector to reduce vehicle use and emissions, through programs such as TravelSmart, an alternative way of reducing Greenhouse Gases in the atmosphere is to remove them after they have been emitted via carbon sequestration in trees.

The TreeSmart program aims to remove carbon dioxide from the atmosphere by planting, maintaining and harvesting plantation eucalypt trees. The TreeSmart program is different to some other carbon sequestration programs that plant trees and leave them un-maintained as a perpetual forest.

The TreeSmart program will operate by selling subscriptions to Australian travellers (motorists, road freight operators, public transport travellers, air travellers, conference attendees) to enable the CO2 emissions from their travel to be absorbed (sequestered) in eucalypt trees grown for eventual harvesting and replanting.

OUTDOOR TRAVEL Pty Ltd do not specifically endorse any of these options & do not vouch for their effectiveness or credibility but we believe this information will help make an informed decision
